1 ROOT CAUSE LAYER: THE EXISTENCE OF THE SYSTEM ITSELF

- The very existence of centralized systems of power creates the conditions for resistance.
 - Freedom struggles are not random events — they are inevitable by-products of state systems that:
 - Centralize authority
 - Impose uniform codes of law, language, identity
 - Control resource distribution
 - Demand obedience and submission

2 THE SYSTEM'S ETHICAL FRAMEWORK ("FIRMWARE")

- Every system embeds a self-justifying ethical code which:
 - Legitimizes its monopoly on violence.
 - Sanctifies its right to define legality vs illegality.
 - Converts acts of oppression into necessary functions of governance.
 - This ethical code is not necessarily written in law — it is culturally, historically, and philosophically embedded.
 - The system therefore:
 - Does not perceive itself as an oppressor.
 - Frames its actions as "order maintenance," "national unity," "law enforcement," "counterterrorism," etc.

3 WHY FREEDOM STRUGGLES EXIST

- The struggle exists because:
 - The system exists.
 - The system produces oppression as an inevitable function of its operation.

- The deeper cause is not simply injustice — injustice is the visible symptom; the system's existence is the root.

4 GLOBAL EXAMPLES VIEWED THROUGH THIS LENS

Region	Systemic Root	Manifested Freedom Struggle
British Empire	Imperial occupation	Indian Independence Movement
USSR	Soviet totalitarian centralization	Baltic independence, Chechnya
PRC	Han-centered communist centralism	Tibet, Xinjiang, Inner Mongolia
Sri Lanka	Majoritarian Sinhalese Buddhist nationalism	Tamil Eelam
Turkey	Kemalist nationalism	Kurdish PKK struggle
USA (historical)	Slavery & racial caste	Civil Rights Movement
South Africa	Apartheid regime	ANC liberation struggle
Israel-Palestine	Zionist statehood	Palestinian nationalist struggle

5 THE UNIVERSAL RULE EMERGING

Freedom struggles arise wherever a system exists whose operational structure denies full existential legitimacy to subordinate or peripheral identities.

- The system's inherent need for:
 - Homogeneity
 - Control
 - Centralization
- inevitably produces:
 - Alienation
 - Identity suppression
 - Economic extraction

- Political marginalization

6 FREEDOM FIGHTERS AS EXISTENTIAL ACTORS

- They are not merely reacting to specific acts of oppression.
- They are resisting systemic nullification of their identity and existence.
- This is why they experience the war as existential:
 - “If we don’t fight, we will cease to exist.”

7 THE SYSTEM'S USE OF POWER

- Once conflict arises:
 - The system deploys its full spectrum of force: military, legal, economic, psychological, informational.
 - It constructs narratives that:
 - Demonize the freedom fighter.
 - Glorify the state.
 - Manufacture internal and external consent.
 - Create moral asymmetry in public perception.

8 META-CONSEQUENCE

- Freedom struggles and oppression are two sides of the same systemic coin.
 - As long as systems operate with embedded self-justifying firmware, the conditions for freedom struggles will continue to exist globally.
